Physical Description:

This important study collection of 191 books from the personal library of Marjorie Mosser Ellis of Kennebunkport is made up mostly of the novels and non-fiction books of Kennebunkport writer Kenneth Roberts. Ellis was the niece by marriage of Roberts as well as his personal secretary during his most productive years. The collection includes various and special editions of Roberts's books, most inscribed by him to her. It includes also paperback editions, foreign editions, and anthologies that include Roberts's work. There are also a few magazine articles, pamphlets, etc., about Roberts.

Clippings about the different books and other papers that were in the books have been removed to folders in Box #1. Each bears the same accession number as the book from which it was removed, for easy retracing.

The collection also includes Mrs. Ellis's personal copies of books by Booth Tarkington, another Kennebunkport writer, many of them inscribed by Tarkington or Roberts. Also, her personal copies of the novels of Ben Ames Williams, a Maine writer, and A. Hamilton Gibbs, both personal friends of the Roberts household. These are also inscribed to Marjorie. The collection also includes Mrs. Ellis's personal copies of novels of John P. Marquand, most with author inscriptions.

Kenneth Roberts's leather-bound personal copies of the novels of Ben Ames Williams are also in this collection. Each is inscribed to Roberts and his wife Anna, and has Roberts's bookplate in the front covers.

The bulk of the collection is stored in the top, locked cupboard in the Manuscript Curator's office although some of Roberts's novels are in the Reference Library downstairs (see listing for specific shelf locations). The Tarkington novels are on the Maine Authors/Histories shelf in the Manuscript Collection archives.

The boxed material is on the shelf in the Manuscript Archives with other collections.

The collection's accession number is #82.51.1-201.
