Physical Description:

This collection contains objects and documents pertaining to Edith C. Barry, founder of The Brick Store Museum in Kennebunk, Maine. This collection is made up of letters, artwork, photographs, documents, journals, and scrapbooks that encompass the dates of 1884 to 1969 (and after for the Brick Store Museum). The collection also includes papers and documents of her family members: Elizabeth Barry Borden (sister) and husband Norman E. Borden, and their children; Charles Edward Barry (brother) and wife Lillian M. Barry; Julia Barry Bodman (sister) and husband Edward W. Bodman; and her parents, Charles Dummer Barry and Ida Morton Thompson Barry.

Included in this collection are photo albums of Barry family trips throughout the world – Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Europe, and the United States – and scrapbooks; letters, written by Edith Barry during her time abroad as a student range from 1906 – 1920. Edith Barry’s scrapbooks of her “Around the World in 80 Days” trip with Mary Wadleigh are stored in three boxes (88.ECB.57). Edith Barry’s original artwork is also held in this collection, ranging from her early sketches to that of a professional artist.

The collection is of local interest because the Barry family was local to Kennebunk and many objects in this collection detail local events, places, and people. This collection is also of interest to a broader research base because of its implications in and contributions to travel history, early 20th century American history, correspondence history, 20th century world history, and the study of modern art and artists.

This collection is stored together in scrapbooks and boxes in the upstairs storage area, bearing the words “Collection #97 Edith C. Barry Collection.”
